

Background of the problem:

Many people still rely on scattered sources such as social media posts, notice boards, and word of mouth to find important events, workshops, competitions, and conferences. This makes it difficult to discover relevant opportunities and register on time. On the other side, event organizers face challenges in reaching a wider audience and managing registrations efficiently. As the number of events increases, handling everything manually becomes time-consuming and often leads to low participation or missed opportunities. Therefore, a centralized system is necessary to improve event discovery, registration, and overall coordination between organizers and participants.

Common View of the System:

The system is a desktop application designed to connect participants with event organizers in one platform. It allows different users such as participants, organizers, and administrators to access and perform tasks based on their roles. The system helps in storing and managing event information, registrations, and user details in a centralized way. Through this system, users can easily discover various events, workshops, competitions, and conferences, register online, and manage their activities. Overall, it reduces manual work and ensures better coordination among all users involved in event-related activities.

Target Group of Users:Participant:
